Ibrahim Elfiky was born on August 5th, 1950 in Egypt. He earned a degree in the field of tourism and hotels in Egypt. After his graduation, he immigrated with his wife “Amal Attiah”, to Canada in 1978 seeking better life. Elfiky started looking for a job and within two days, he found two jobs. The best of those was a career of washing dishes in a modest hotel. He faced many challenges in his early life, but he never quit his dream. Elfiky moved forward in his career after washing dishes. He realized that he had to obtain a certified Canadian degree to have a better career. Therefore, he worked days and nights to make it happened. After eight years, he earned certificates with honours in Human Behaviour, Marketing and Sales Management. Furthermore, he became a ‘General Manager of five stars hotel in Montreal.

Ibrahim Elfiky started to specialize in the field of human development. Dr. Elfiky trained thousands of people in his seminars and workshops around the world. Finally, he established his own institution “Ibrahim Elfiky International Inc”. He authored numerous bestselling books, audio, video tapes and DVDs in the field of human development. Among many popular books, he published ‘7 Secrets of Personal Power’ and ‘10 Keys to Ultimate Success. Elfiky died in a horrible accident when a fire broke out his apartment building in Cairo on February 10th, 2012. Ibrahim Elfiky spent his life in spreading positive thinking and behaviour, the power of hope in the ability to change the grim reality.

Queen Victoria was born on May 24th, 1819 at Kensington Palace in London. Her father was Edward, the Duke of Kent and her mother was Princess Victoria of Germany. Victoria lived the life of a young royal and her mother was very protective. She had little contact with other children spending most of her days with adult tutors and playing with dolls when she was young. As she grew older she enjoyed painting, drawing, and writing in her diary. When King William IV died, Victoria became Queen of the United Kingdom at the age of eighteen. Victoria was determined to be a good queen and to restore the faith of the people of the United Kingdom in the monarchy. One of the first things she did was to pay off her father's debts. The people liked her from the start. Victoria didn't know a lot about how to govern, however, she made a good friend and tutor in the Prime Minister at the time, Lord Melbourne. On October 10th, 1839 a German Prince named Albert came to visit the royal court. Victoria immediately fell in love. They married on February 10th, 1840. She and Albert had 9 children over the next several years. Albert also became her confidant and helped her in navigating the politics of England. The Victorian era was a period of prosperity and peace for Great Britain. It was a time of industrial expansion and the building of railroads. Queen Victoria died on January 22nd, 1901 at Osborne House on Isle of Wight and buried in a mausoleum at Windsor.

Text:

In Britain, before the internet people used to listen to the news on the radio as they got up. Then , they read a newspaper in the morning on the train while travelling to work. On the way home, they may even buy another newspaper – an evening newspaper, possibly or a local one. Also, they used to watch the news on television at six o'clock before going to bed. At the weekend, they had the big Sunday papers. Yes, before the internet, there were easy, separate categories of time. Radio, newspapers and television all had a place.

Then things became a bit more complicated. First 24 hours TV news arrived, and then the internet. Now, people can get the news when they want rather than waiting for other people to decide what to tell them and when.

THE THIRD TERM TEST (2)

On February 11th, 2014, an Algerian Air Force aircraft crashed into Djebel Fertas Mountain, in Oum Bouaghi. The military aircraft crash killed 77 people and wounded others. According to witnesses, the aircraft which was carrying tens of soldiers and members of officers' families fell on Fertas Mountain. Journalists found a big difficulty in going to the accident place due to bad weather. Because of that, they relied on cell phone cameras of residents who were there before authorities. At around 5 p.m on Tuesday, a group of journalists was sent to the crash place. The route was blocked because of snow. A colonel in charge of keeping watch on the area allowed the journalists to enter and pass by check points on all the paved way. Traces showed that the army dug the route to create a way in the middle of the mountain to carry the aircraft remaining pieces. It was dark, cold and foggy. There was no guide to show the journalists the way to the accident place. They had to spend the night there and woke up early in the following morning to go to the crash place. Early on Wednesday's morning, civil protection forces started combing the area and found remaining parts of bodies. They put them in special bags. "I was there and we collected the bodies in one place to be carried by helicopters," an officer told. "Some of the bodies were carbonized and we could not identify them. Others were cut and mutilated", he added. Colonel Lahbiri, General Director of civil protection said the bodies were collected but his forces were still looking for the remaining pieces in the mountain. Asked about the reasons behind the crash, he said it might be due to bad weather. "We are waiting for the person who survived the accident to tell us about the real reason," he added.

THE THIRD TERM TEST (2)

Paul Walker, the star of the Fast and Furious film, died after the car he was in crashed at a speed of more than 100 miles per hour (mph) and burst into flames, according to the coroner's report released on Friday. Walker, 40, was found dead along with his friend and financial adviser Roger Rodas on November 30th, 2013, in a burnt-out Porsche Carrera in Los Angeles. "Investigators determined the cause of the fatal solo-vehicle collision was unsafe speed for the roadway conditions," Commander Mike Parker said. Rodas was driving between 80 to 93 mph in a 45 mph zone when he lost control of the vehicle. "The vehicle had no mechanical failure and the damage that occurred to the vehicle was from the collision," he added. The coroner's report said Walker died of the combined effects of traumatic and thermal injuries while Rodas, the driver, died of multiple traumatic injuries. No drugs or alcohol were detected in either men. Kristy McCracken, the investigator for the Los Angeles coroner, described how the car was driving at unsafe speed in an easterly direction. For an unknown reason the driver lost control of the vehicle and it partially spun around. "The force of these collisions caused the vehicle to spin 180 degrees and it continued to travel in an easterly direction," the report states. The passenger side of the vehicle then struck a tree and it then burst into flames. The coroner said the Porsche was found "totalled with major traffic collision damage all around and it appeared that the vehicle was almost split in half". Walker was still filming scenes for Fast and Furious 7 when the accident happened.
