Sarah's Fun Trip to Spain

Last autumn, Sarah and her family went on an exciting adventure to Spain. Making lots of fantastic memories during their seven-day stay, they explored the amazing cities of Madrid, Barcelona, and Granada.

First, they landed in Madrid, the birthplace of the great artist Francisco Goya. Sarah loved looking at the pretty Royal Palace and learning cool things about Spain's past at the Prado Museum. The lively markets and cheerful squares were so much fun because every moment in the city was special.

Then, they moved to Barcelona. Sarah was totally amazed by Antoni Gaudi's Sagrada Familia and Park Güell. Antoni Gaudi, a famous architect, was known for his unique and imaginative buildings that beautifully mixed nature and art into magnificent structures.

After that, they visited Granada, where they explored the marvellous Alhambra Palace, a breathtaking fortress with beautiful gardens and Islamic architecture. Sarah was captivated by the stunning views of the city from the palace, making Granada another memorable part of their unforgettable journey.

Finally, they returned home. The trip was not just a break; it was a super fun exploration into the heart of Spain. Sarah came back with lots of happy memories, a better understanding of Spain's awesome history, and a desire to visit again.
